PRICE TWO CENTS

CARR TOWNSHIP FARMER DROWNED

Obed A. Pruitt, Aged Thirty-eight,
Stricken with Paralysis of the Heart While Bathing.

SWIMMING IN POND NEAR HOME

Another Man in the Water Did Not See Body Reappear After It Went Down the First Time.

Obed A. Pruitt, aged thirty-eight years, a widely known Carr township farmer, was drowned late Friday afternoon while swimming in a pond on his farm near Medora. It is believed that he was stricken with paralysis of the heart, probably the result of the shock of the cold water. His body did not reappear to the surface of the water after it went down the first time and this leads to the belief that he was fatally stricken before the body went under the water. The body was recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Pruitt were in Seymour shopping Friday and were expected to return here today for some of their purchases. They drove to their home in their automobile during the afternoon, arriving there about 4 o'clock. When Mr. Pruitt reached his farm he walked to the barn where another man was engaged at work and it was proposed that they take a swim in a pond which stood in a gravel pit a short distance away. The men were swimming near each other and Mr. Pruitt had been in the water but a short time when the attention of his companion was attracted by his struggles.

The man made every endeavor to reach the body but was not successful until life was extinct. After the recovery of the body William A. Dickmeyer, county coroner, was summoned and conducted the inquest.

When Mr. Pruitt's son learned that his father was at the pond he asked permission of his mother to go in swimming. Mrs. Pruitt consented provided the boy's father was near. The boy went to the pond and found his father's clothes on the bank but could see no one. He ran back to the house and informed his mother. Mrs. Pruitt went to the pond and realizing that an accident had occurred, hastened to the house and telephoned a physician. The man who was with Mr. Pruitt when the latter was stricken, had gone to the neighbors for assistance before the lad arrived.

Mr. Pruitt was very popular in the community where he lived and his sudden death was a shock to his many friends. Few men in Carr township were held in higher esteem and with greater regard than was Mr. Pruitt. He was a true friend and there was never a time that he did not respond to a call for assistance. He was a member of the Christian church at Medora, and took an active part in the work of that denomination. He was prominently identified with the agricultural interests of Carr township.

Mr. Pruitt was married about fifteen years ago to Miss Adda Brand, who lived near Houston. He is survived by his widow, one son, aged about twelve years, his father, James Pruitt, of Terre Haute, and a James Pruitt, of Terre Haute, and several brothers. Mrs. James Snow, of this city, is a cousin of the deceased.

The funeral will be held at the Christian church at Medora at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The deceased was a member of the Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Ceremony to be Held by Reddington
K. of P. Lodge Tomorrow.

The Reddington Knights of Pythias Lodge will observe Memorial Day tomorrow and will conduct a ceremony at the Reddington cemetery. The members will meet at the hall at 2 p. m. and will march to the cemetery where the graves of their departed brothers will be decorated. The Reddington band will furnish music. All Knights are invited to attend and participate in the service.

SURVEY MADE OF CORN SITUATION

Many of the Fields in the County Will Have to be Replanted on Account of Water.

UNDUE ALARM UNWARRANTED

Seed Corn That is Not Replanted Before June 20 Should be "Ninety-Day" Variety.

The following information concerning the corn condition in this county is contained in a bulletin issued by the Jackson County Food Commission:

Corn generally in the high ground seems to be in good condition. The land in the bottoms is just now in poor condition, but if the weather remains fair people will be able to get to work in from five to seven days. Under the best of conditions some of this ground cannot be prepared early enough for the regular seed corn which has been used heretofore, and these people must have earlier varieties. Anything that cannot be replanted before June 20th must have "Ninety day corn."

The varieties of early corn are "Leaming," "Early Yellow Dent" and "Wabash Yellow Dent" and some varieties of the red corn. Just now Charles Vogel has the only early corn the Committee knows of. People who are going to need ninety day corn should inform the committee accordingly at the earliest moment possible, so that an adequate quantity may be secured. In the case of more rain there will be an over demand for this corn, and it is strongly urged that those who are certain they will need ninety day corn obtain it immediately.

Doubtless there will be a great many calls for additional labor by the farmers to replant the corn and other crops damaged by the recent high water. As soon as the lands are cleared of the floods and dry enough for working all of the farmers will be busy and will need additional labor for a short time. All persons who desire employment of this kind are requested to leave their names at either of the banks or at the Farmers' Club, and arrangements will be made to put them to work on farms, either temporarily or permanently, as they desire.

Under the direction of the Chairman of the Jackson County Food Committee County Agent A. D. Cobb and Agricultural Superintendent of the Seymour High School, A. E. Murphy commenced on June 7th a canvass of the County to ascertain what damage had been done the growing crops by the recent rains and floods. In making this investigation

MRS. GEORGE L. HANCOCK IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Final Summons Came to Well Known
Woman Friday Evening—
Funeral Sunday.

Mrs. Fannie D. Hancock, wife of George L. Hancock, died at the family residence, corner Sixth and Ewing streets, at 7:40 o'clock Friday evening, after an illness of several years. Death was due to pernicious anaemia.

Mrs. Hancock was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Vogel, and was born August 22, 1863, in Jackson county, south of Seymour. Her marriage to Mr. Hancock occurred on Sept. 20, 1890. Their entire married life has been spent in Seymour. Early in life she united with the First Methodist church, and had, until her health prevented, always been active in the work of the church. For many years she sang in the church choir. A woman of beautiful Christian character and many accomplishments, she made a host of friends who mourn her loss.

Besides her husband, she is survived by five brothers and sisters: Mrs. S. W. Gettier, of Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. George S. Clow, Mrs. A. J. Schmitt, John L. Vogel and Valentine S. Vogel, of this city.

The funeral services will be conducted from the First M. E. church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. J. H. Carnes, assisted by the Rev. E. R. Vest. Interment will be at Riverview.

COMPLETE REPORT FILED BY BOARD

Exemption for Various Causes Indicated by 1,050 Men Registering in the County.

TOTAL OF 1,751 ARE ENROLLED

Dependent Relatives Indicated by 953—Seven Colored Men in the County Register.

The complete official summary of the registration figures for Jackson county have been forwarded to the adjutant-general of Indiana and to the provost marshal general at Washington by the county registration board. The summary shows that a total of 1,751 were registered. It is expected that a few others may file cards within the next few days under the policy of liberality which has been announced by the provost-general. However, if this policy is abused the sheriff of the county is instructed to arrest men who are known to have evaded registration.

The summary shows that one man asked exemption under the clause of legislative, judicial or executive office. Forty-one white males asked exemption under the total disability clause and 947 indicated that relatives were dependent upon them for support. Fifty-five were listed under the occupational exemption clause. A total of 1,044 white males of registration age indicated reason for exemption.

Seven hundred of the men registering did not state cause for ex-

Startling Shortages—Hunt for Slackers Begun.

By United Press.
Washington, June 9.—In nine states a determined hunt for slackers was on today. Returns compiled here show nine states more than 150,000 short of estimates by the census bureau. Only four out of fourteen states which have reported official totals on registrations exceeded census bureau estimates. Mississippi and Alabama showed startling shortages, both states being 60,000 under the estimates.

CONSERVATION OF LABOR IS URGED

State Council of Defense Recommends That Professional Idlers
Be Put to Work.

FEWER TRAMPS ARE SEEN HERE

Police Tell Able Bodied Hoboes That They Must Join the Army if Loaf Around This City.

The state council of defense, of which Will H. Hays, is chairman, is aiding in many ways in the preparations for war and suggests that the shortage of farm labor be met by putting to work all professional idlers who roam around the state and avoid work by begging food and clothing. The recommendation is made that the county councils of defense give this matter their attention and aid in the conservation of labor by finding employment for such men.

This recommendation was met in this county by the employment bureau of the Jackson County Food Commission before the state council of defense became into existence. Albert H. Ahlbrand is chairman of the bureau and has a plan worked out whereby he finds employment for all men who files applications with him. The plan that is proposed by the state council of defense is quite similar to the one that is already in operation here.

The suggestion of the state council is sent out as follows:

"As this is no time for idlers, it being the plain duty of every able-bodied person to be a contributor as well as a consumer, we suggest the advisability of strict enforcement of"

BODY OF KIDNAPED BABE FOUND IN ABANDONED WELL

Springfield, Mo., Police Direct Efforts Towards Rounding Up the Riley Gang.

By United Press.

Springfield, Mo., June 9.—The body of the fourteen-months-old son of J. H. Keet, who was kidnaped May 30, was found this afternoon in an abandoned well near the Crenshaw place, eight miles from here. The Crenshaw place was mentioned as the proposed rendezvous of the Riley gang in their scheme to kidnap a jeweler, according to a confession of two suspects held in connection with the kidnaping. Both then denied they knew anything of the Keet case. Police thus far have been unable to shake their story.

NAMES MEMBERS OF DEFENSE COUNCIL

Judge Swails Makes Appointments as Asked by the State Council of Defense.

TO ORGANIZE NEXT SATURDAY

Local Council Will Co-operate With Similar Bodies in Meeting
all War Conditions.

Judge Oren O. Swails this morning appointed seven members to the Jackson County Council of Defense to cooperate with the Indiana State Council of Defense and the National Council of Defense in questions arising from the war conditions. The State Council asked the judges of the circuit courts of the state to name the members of the councils for their respective counties.

The members of the Jackson County Council are:

David B. Vance, Brownstown, veteran of the Civil War.

Judge O. H. Montgomery, Seymour, attorney.

Harry Henderson, Medora, county superintendent-elect.

J. B. Purkhiser, Seymour, trainmaster on B. & O. Southwestern.

Sherman Hall, Crothersville, farmer.

John E. Hunsucker, Vallonia, merchant.

Mrs. David A. Kochenour, Brownstown.

The State Council recommended that the county councils be non-partisan and that one woman be included on the board.

Judge Swails also announced when he made the appointments public that the Council will meet at the library in the court house at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, June 16, for purposes of organization and such other business that may be presented.

The Council of Defense has an important place in the present war. The State Council has undertaken the task of urging the people of Indiana to buy Liberty Loan Bonds; it is interested in the conservation of labor and in many other problems that will affect the welfare of the people of Indiana and the nation at large.

Judge Swails also announced the members of the Lawrence County Council as follows:

A. J. McDonald, Bedford, physician.

John H. Edwards, Mitchell, attorney.

William S. Whyte, Bedford, stone carver.

Augustus E. Dickinson, Bedford, quarry owner.

Harry Montgomery, Tunnelton, farmer.

Grant Armstrong, Bedford, farmer.

Mrs. Henry A. Pearson, Bedford.

The Lawrence County Council will meet at the court house in Bedford at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon to effect an organization.

THIRTY-FIVE BODIES TAKEN FROM BURNING MINE

Flames Roaring 2,400 Feet Under Ground Near Butte, Mo., Cut Off Escape.

By United Press.

Butte, Mo., June 9.—Thirty-five bodies have been recovered from the blazing Speculator mine near here. The fire which has been raging since midnight last night began when a power cable carrying a high voltage current ignited some tar at the 2,400-foot level.

The fire spread rapidly to other levels and to the adjoining Diamond mine. 450 men were at work in the mine when the fire broke out. Of these, 213 escaped through connecting levels, according to officials who are directing the rescue efforts. This leaves a total of 167 unaccounted for. Little hope of them being alive is held out.

VOLUNTARY PLAN OF FOOD CONTROL

Patriotism Will be Basis for Regulating Prices and Control of Food Commodities.

OUTLINED BY H. C. HOOVER

Government Will Have Power to Compel Unwilling Persons to Obey the Agreements.

By United Press.

Washington, June 9.—Patriotism will be made the basis of food control at the start.

Autocratic measures such as absolute price fixing and requisition of food will not be utilized except as a last resort.

The regulation of prices and supply will be effected through voluntary agreements, according to the plan of Herbert C. Hoover, the nation's food administrator.

Those who refuse to enter the proposed agreement will be taken care of by powers to be authorized by congress. Hoover proposes to have a controlling body in charge of each product that will come under his department. They will work out a voluntary agreement designed to conserve the food supply and greatly reduce the price.

There are certain to be a few objectors but seventy-five percent. of those to be called on will respond on patriotic grounds, Hoover believes. Powers of requisition must be given the government, therefore, to force the other twenty-five percent. to follow the leaders.

Had It In Stock.

A dealer, of excitable temperament, heard a clerk say to a woman customer: "No; we haven't had any for a long time."

The proprietor, glaring at the wondering clerk, said to the woman: "We have plenty in reserve, ma'am; plenty downstairs."

Whereupon the customer looked dazed. Then she burst into hysterical laughter and quit the shop.

"What did she say to you?" demanded the proprietor of the clerk.

"Why, that we haven't had any rain lately."

Prize for a Razorback.

An ex-governor of Georgia, and ex-officio an expert on hogs, was invited to judge the swine at an Indiana county fair. He looked over the pens, and the choice narrowed down to two hogs, one a magnificent animal of the Indiana corn fed variety, of tremendous weight, and the other a lean and rangy specimen, whose pedigree must have embraced a large number of razorbacks.

The governor, after an appropriate judicial interval, pinned the blue ribbon on the rangy one. A friend nudged his elbow. "Governor," he said, "there's been some mistake. Look at the weight of the other hog."

"Son," returned the governor, "down in Georgia we've got different ideas about judgin' a hog. The ability of the hog to outrun a thief counts just six points. The razorback keeps that ribbon, suh."—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Jupiter Pluvius may only be trying to do his bit, but he should be informed that there is such a thing as over done patriotism.

Chinese Humor.

Wu Ting Fang, the new Chinese Foreign Office head, is reported to be quite a humorist. A writer in the Chicago News recalls his famous wheeze about the Chinaman who committed suicide by eating gold leaf.

"But I don't see how that killed him,—how did it?" inquired an American woman.

"I suppose," said Wu, seriously, "that it was the consciousness of inward guilt."

AMERICAN CAPITALISTS DREAM OF RUSSIAN ROAD

Through Line from U. S. to Petrograd Through Canada is Now Proposed.

By United Press.

Winnipeg, June 9.—A through railway route from the United States to Petrograd by way of Canada. This ambition of United States capitalists has been outlined in a lengthy report to the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. The scheme has been considered for some time and negotiations with the railways and governments which will be involved in the project will be opened in the near future. Increased transportation to the westward without running the risk of submarines sinking ships, and assistance in the war for Russia with munitions and food will result if the proposed connection is established.

The plan provides for a standard railway line, connecting United States roads through British and Alaska with Behring strait and a line from the Siberian coast to the Trans-Siberian railway. Large ferries would carry freight and passenger cars across the 56 mile wide strait. Negotiations have been opened with the Russian Government to improve the Trans-Siberian railway into a modern instead of a primitive stretch of track overburdened by war transportations. The United States commission to Russia will take up that phase of the proposed line with the new Russian Government.

Men back of the undertaking believe that within a few years an international railway will connect New York with Petrograd. They are taking into consideration the possibility of the war lasting several years. The promoters of the project are satisfied that future benefit would justify the vast financial outlay that will be necessary. They declare that a few years of world's peace would make the most important railway route on earth.

"THE WHOLE TRUTH"

Says Mrs. Eads, in Writing Her Praise For Cardui.

Circleville, Ohio.—"All I have said about Cardui, the woman's tonic, is the whole truth," says Mrs. Fannie Eads, of R. F. D. No. 6, this town.

"I suffered with womanly weakness, and pains in my back and limbs for two long years. I was so bad off, I could hardly walk at all.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I concluded to follow his advice. After taking Cardui according to directions, I now feel like a new woman, and can do all of my work.

Before taking Cardui, I was a walking skeleton; now I weigh 150 pounds. I recommend Cardui to every suffering woman, for I know what it did for me. My dresser is never without a bottle of Cardui on it."

There is no reason why Cardui won't help you, just as it has Mrs. Eads, as well as hundreds of thousands of other women in the past 50 years. So if you suffer from any of the many ailments so common to women, or need a good strengthening tonic for that tired, nervous, worn-out feeling, get a bottle of Cardui today. At all druggists. NCBI the vagrancy laws, not in harshness, but as a matter of justness. The world needs food, and it is only fair that those who eat should be required to work, if they are able to do so, and every effort should be made by the County Councils of Defense to find employment for every one able to work, and at a fair wage. We are convinced that if the class of people who make a business of making a living by begging food from house to house are denied this method of sustenance, except those who are ill, a large number of additional laborers will be available for farm work. We suggest that this plan be carried out through the County Councils in each county.

"State Council of Defense, "Will H. Hays, "Chairman."

The police here declare that there has been a noticeable lack of professional tramps in this city since the war was declared. On account of the location of this city the tramp problem has always received more or less attention and at times has become quite serious. The activity of the officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern and Pennsylvania Railroads, however, in enforcing the law which prohibits train riding, has aided in solving the problem, but despite the efforts of the railroad patrolmen quite a number of hoboes came here daily.

Since war was declared, however, and the recruiting office was opened in this city tramps have evaded Seymour. It is believed that fewer tramps have visited here during the last few weeks than in the corresponding time for years. Occasionally a tramp is seen around the familiar camps near the city and when he tells the police that he is searching for work the officers lose no time in telling him that they can accommodate him by finding work on a farm or in the service of the army. The professional idlers seldom lose time in "beating it" to the next city. The few tramps that are seen here now are old men or cripples, who are not physically able for active farm work or for army service.

To Go To France.

C. R. Feagans, a former Washington young man, who has enlisted in the United States army engineers corps, left last night for Philadelphia to join his command after a brief visit with his mother, Mrs. J. W. Feagans, of southeast Fifth street. Mr. Feagans is attached to the Ninth reserve regiment which, it is expected, will depart for France before the end of the month. The regiment will receive two weeks' training at the Philadelphia barracks, the members reporting there today in compliance with orders. Mr. Feagans has been employed in the engineering department of the New York Central railroad at Indianapolis recently.—Washington Herald.

Mr. Feagans was formerly employed on the B. & O. Southwestern in this city. He was employed in the motive power department.

Henry Osterman, of the Central Pharmaceutical Co., will leave tonight for New Haven, Conn., to spend a few days with his brother, Carl Osterman, who is a student in the Yale Law School.

HARWARE MERCHANT

Builds Nerves and Body

No business man stands higher in his community than does H. R. Beamer, hardware merchant, of Ohio. Nervous prostration left Mr. Beamer a physical wreck. Read what he says a single bottle of Hull's Superlative did for him: "Five years ago I had nervous prostration; was in a very run-down condition; only weighed 128 pounds. My nerves were so weak I could not sleep nights, and in the morning would be all in and unfit for work. I got a bottle of Hull's Superlative and took only three drops at a dose. That one bottle cured me, and my weight increased to 165 pounds. Hull's Superlative is certainly a great nerve and body-builder.

Persons similarly afflicted should profit by Mr. Beamer's wonderful experience. Hull's Superlative has a long list of cures to its credit, covering a period of more than twenty years. In fact, this remedy acts so quickly that the first dose often produces astonishing results.

This wonder-remedy is compounded from roots, barks and one berry. It is nature's great assistant, and has proven its worth in rheumatism, tonsillitis, colds, grip, infantile and other forms of paralysis, kidney, bladder and stomach trouble, nervous conditions, etc. All druggists sell Hull's Superlative. It is only $1.00 a bottle and the A. J. Hull Medicine Company, of Findlay, O., will gladly supply any information desired—Adv.

NICOTINE SOLUTION WILL KILL THE ONION THRIPS

Insect That Has Done Much Damage in Last Few Years Can be Controlled.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, June 9.—Frank K. Wallace, in a statement today, warned gardeners against the onion thrips, which has caused a great deal of damage to the onion crop in Indiana for several years.

He said: "For several years the onion crop in parts of Indiana has been severely injured by a very small yellow insect known as onion thrips or onion louse. The adult lays its eggs just beneath the surface of the leaves and the young rasp the surface of the leaf, giving it a silver appearance. This is so noticeable that many growers call it the 'blight.' Later the leaves curl or twist and dry, turning a brown color.

"Spraying with nicotine juice solution when damage is just noticed will save the crop. Use one ounce of 40 per cent. Nicotine Sulphate to ten gallons of water in which has been dissolved one bar of laundry soap. Soap is necessary to make the solution stick to the leaves.

Thrips damage other garden plants.

Mrs. J. A. Linke, formerly of Seymour, who has been spending several days here the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, south of the city, and with relatives at Hope, has returned to her home at Lafayette.

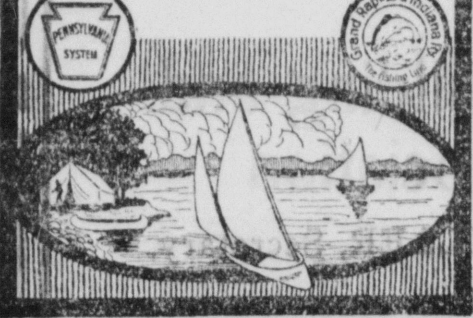

Henry Osterman will leave this evening for Atlantic City, New Jersey, where he will attend a national pharmacists' convention.

CORPORATIONS AID IN SALE OF LIBERTY BONDS

Wells-Fargo Express Company and Western Union Co-operate With Employees.

The imperative need of making the Liberty Loan a success is recognized by the great corporations of the United States, some of which are aiding their employees to purchase bonds. Among these are the Wells-Fargo Express Company and the Western Union Company. Circulars explaining the plan of co-operation have been sent to the local agents of both companies.

The Wells-Fargo Company will advance the money for the purchase of Liberty Loan bonds for its employees, according to the bulletin received by Ernest Amick, local agent. The company agrees to subscribe for a block of stock for its employee and will permit them to pay for them in as many as twenty-five equal installments. The total subscription of each employee buying bonds under this plan is limited to $1,000.

A similar plan is outlined in a bulletin sent to Halleck Endaly, local manager of the Western Union. The company agrees to buy the bonds for the employees and the amount is payable to the company at the rate of twenty-five per cent. of the wages. The principal may be paid in as many as eighteen installments if the employee desires.

Both companies believe that by this plan of co-operation a large block of the bonds will be taken up by the employees, thus giving them an opportunity to aid their government in a material way.

COMPLETE REPORT FILED BY BOARD

emption. The figures show that 1,744 white males were registered under the conscription act.

The report further shows that seven colored males registered, six indicating dependent relatives and one asking no exemption. The grand totals for the county show that 953 indicated dependent relatives and 1,051 sought exemption for various reasons.

The county board today was engaged upon the task of copying the 1,751 names on typewritten sheets for publication as provided in the law. Two copies will be posted at the court house. Several employees around the court house were aiding in the registration board in completing the lists. The original cards are retained in the office of the county clerk for future reference.

No definite word has been received here as to when the selection of men for military duty will be made. It has been announced at Washington, however, that the selection will be made as soon as the reports from all the states have been filed. It will likely be several weeks before the registration figures are filed and then some time will be required to organize the exemption boards and the other bodies which must make the actual selection. It is stated that the boards will be selected of local citizens.

IRISH NATIONALIST LEADER KILLED ON WESTERN FRONT

Major William Redmond Carried in Ulster Ambulance—Irish Factions
Aiding England.

By United Press.

With the British Armies, June 9—William Redmond, Irish Nationalist leader, brother of John Redmond, died in an ambulance today while on his way to a hospital from the front lines where he was wounded. Redmond was a major in the British army. The fact was pointed out, as illustrative of the perfect fraternization between all who are fighting England's battle, that Redmond died in an Ulster ambulance manned by the very men against whom he and his brother John have been waging bitter political war for years. The two Irish factions are fraternizing in England's warfare.

MODERN WAR BUILT ON COOPERATION OF PEOPLE

Women of Country Must Get Behind
Government and Contributed to Army.

(By Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Vice Chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee. Written for The United Press).

Washington, June 9.—War today is not built on valor alone. It is built on the close co-operation of all the men and women in the nation. The women of the country must get behind their government. Somewhere point of self denial, either in luxury or in real necessities and divert the money to support this war, recognizing always that this is a war for along the line, they must reach the their defense.

Every woman who can should buy a Liberty Bond. This is a war that the women of our beloved country may not meet the fate of the women of Belgium. This is a war to insure peace. This is a war against the wrong ideals of government which had their birth in the blasphemous holy alliance. It is a war that cannot be fought without money. Money stands for food; it stands for shelter; it stands for medical aid for

LET'S WAKE UP

OUR town should wake up to the fact that some one else is occupying the seat that really belongs to us. This intruder represents out-of-town houses that take away business that should go to our own merchants. When will Seymour wake up? As long as we remain asleep the intruder will keep his place. Only when we decide on the policy of co-operation are we fully awake. We have seen the havoc and ruin of neglecting home interests. Now is the time for co-operation.

"If you buy out of town and I buy out of town and all of our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town?"

SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN 'PHONE 42.

the soldiers at the front. No woman would deny her personal ministrations, but the ministrations must be made through others.

Money that we put in Liberty Bonds stands for our tenderness; it stands for our patriotism. You are not required to give, only pledged to pay the debt. Women should know that a Liberty Bond is the written promise of the whole United States to pay back the amount invested, plus 3 1/2 percent. interest. This interest will be paid semi-annually. Liberty Bonds are the safest investment in the world, and they are not subject, either principal or interest, to any kind of taxation, except the inheritance tax.

It is not only a Liberty Bond, but it is a Loyalty Loan. The money thus loaned the government provides for our security; it provides for the welfare of our men at the front; it provides for brave little France and for glorious England, and for Italy, and for all our splendid allies struggling to shake off the beast of ambition that sprang at their throats three years ago.

NEED OF PHYSICIANS FOR AMERICAN ARMY URGENT

Indiana State Medical Association
Suggests that Physicians Enlist at Once.

The urgent need of doctors for the American army is emphasized in a letter which has been received by Dr. L. B. Hill, of this city, from the Indiana Medical Association. The letter is self-explanatory and is as follows:

"Will you please call to the attention of your membership the urgent need for physicians and surgeons in the army. More than 25,000 doctors are also needed for European service in addition to the number that must accompany the American troops. Only 3,000 men have enlisted thus far in the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps and by the end of the year 10,000 doctors will be required on the ratio of ten medical officers for every 1,000 men.

"There are 9,000 young doctors in the country between the ages of 21 and 31, who are liable to conscription if they do not volunteer their services. Three new branches of the medical service of the U. S. Army have been created by the War Department: a division of sanitary inspection, a division of hospitals and hospital construction, and a division of medical military instruction. As you know, training camps already have been established, one of them being at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, where approximately 600 doctors began training on June 1.

"Doctors will be put through a course which is divided into three periods of four weeks each. This course will be designed to familiarize the men with the functions and environment of medical military work. The first four weeks will be spent in acquainting the doctors with the duties the enlisted man is expected to perform. The second month will be devoted to training the doctors in the duties of the medical officer and in an intensive book training on military medical matters. The third month will be spent in training in the field. An ambulance company and a field hospital will be established at each training camp for doctors and later there will be special schools for the enlisted men of the medical department. The division of hospitals and hospital construction will immediately be concerned with the preparation of thirty-two hospitals for the divisional cantonments. The division of sanitary inspection has to do with all sanitary matters pertaining to the army in the field. This work will be carried on by a corps of general sanitary inspectors with the ranks of colonels and lieutenant-colonels.

"You will see that there is a widespread demand for doctors in various branches of the service and you should emphasize the fact, especially to those doctors subject to conscription, that they offer their services at once if at all possible, for the chances are that if the doctors of the country do not respond voluntarily in sufficient number, they will be drafted by the government. Please remember that this office will at all times be glad to give any information it has regarding the work of the doctor in the army.

"With very best wishes, I remain
Yours very truly,
F. E. RASCHIG,
Acting Executive Secretary."

FOURTEEN REGISTERED WITH THE COUNTY BOARD

Not Expected That Voters Will Make
Rush for Blanks Until Later in Session.

Fourteen Jackson county voters had registered today with the county board which was organized yesterday under the state law. It is not expected that there will be a big rush for several days, in fact the members of the board are just getting their work in shape and are hardly prepared to take care of a large number of voters. By the middle of the week, however, the preliminary work will be completed and the board will then urge early registration.

Every man and woman who participates in the special election in September must register before August 20. Just how the registration of all voters will be made is a matter of concern to party workers. It is known that a large percentage will not go in person before the board and some plan will be adopted so that they can register by mail or by messenger. It is probable that the precinct committeemen of both parties will be expected to look after the registration in their respective precincts.

Mrs. Rinehart

A Remarkably Successful and Versatile Writer and Novelist

Successful women novelists are by no means unusual but there are few writers among the fair sex who have displayed the versatility in their work that has Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart.

One of the things that Mrs. Rinehart takes particular pride in is the fact that she is the adopted daughter of the Black Feet tribe of Indians, graced by the name of Pi-ta-ma-k-an or "Running Eagle." While on a vacation in the northwest two years ago, following her return from Europe, Mrs. Rinehart met the chiefs of the tribe, who conferred the usual honor upon her because of her bravery in visiting the battle front.

Mrs. Rinehart's stories are in great demand by the editors of the best magazines of the country. Among her greatest successes are "K," "The Man in Lower Ten," and "The Circular Staircase." "The Girl Who Had No God" is one of her latest and best stories and it is with great pleasure that we announce its publication in serial form in this paper.

they will offer their assistance and suggestions to farmers and others who have suffered crop damage. Mr. Murphy began his canvass in Redding township on last Thursday, and found a mixed state of affairs. Many fields of corn recently planted had been damaged more or less, whereas others that had been covered with water seemed to have come from under the flood without any serious damage.

Gardens generally have not met with serious loss, although the appearance of many has been sadly menaced. Mr. Cobb is looking after the western portion of the county, and the committee is also receiving the heartiest cooperation from Henry Lucas, Chairman of the Corn Production Committee. Mr. Lucas has ascertained the location of all lots of seed corn remaining that will be available for the replanting that will have to be done.

Professor Christie has been in communication with the local committee, and recommends that where the replanting of corn can be finished by June 16th, the native acclimated corn should be used for seeding, but in cases where it is impossible to finish the replanting before June 20th it is recommended that earlier varieties of seed corn be brought in from other parts of the state. The committee will have information on this score, which will be furnished upon application.

For the Oppressed

That was the creed of old Hilary Kingston, chief of the cunning band that robbed the rich to give to the poor, to incite seditions and to arm the rebellious.

Hilary was, seemingly, a respectable member of society, living in a handsome home on the hill with his servants and his beautiful daughter who was reared in lawlessness and taught from childhood the righteousness of her father's tenets.

But when old Kingston was accidentally killed and Elinor succeeded as chief of the band, changes came into the life of the girl.

FRED SMITH CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER ELEVATOR

Bedford Contractor, Brother of Mrs. Henry Schleter, of This City, Victim of Accident.

Fred Smith, fifty-seven years, a contractor at Bedford, and a brother of Mrs. Henry Schleter, of this city, was crushed to death Friday when an elevator in a new building at Bedford fell. The Bedford Mail describes the accident as follows:

Smith, who had erected the elevator, was working under the platform in the basement, on the track. A lot of boxes had been loaded on the elevator from the first floor preparatory to lifting them to the second story. When the rope was pulled to raise the elevator, it crashed down upon Smith, who was working underneath. The right shoulder was broken and practically all the ribs torn loose on one side. Two heavy loads had been sent up all right and this load weighing about 600 pounds crashed down as the rope to raise the load was pulled.

Smith had evidently heard the warning cry as the elevator started down and had tried to jump out. He was crushed down from a standing position and his head was not under the platform. A step farther would have been to safety.

His son, Joe, was present when the elevator fell. Some one rushed for help and those near removed the heavy load from the elevator and lifted it while Norman Wilder pulled the injured man out. He was not under the weight for more than four or five minutes.

Fred Smith, the son of the late Christopher and Caroline Schmidt, was born in this city March 5th, 1860. He was one of a family of sixteen, nine of whom passed on, leaving five sisters and two brothers—Mrs. Ed Graf (twin sister of the deceased) of Indianapolis; Mrs. Schleter, of Seymour; Miss Caroline R. Smith, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Wiegand, of Lansing, Michigan; Mrs. Will Mergemre and Guss Smith, of this city; Erdman Smith, of New Albany.

An important meeting of the official board of the First M. E. church was held Friday night in the Sunday School room. A large attendance was present. The session was given over to a discussion of the financial problems of the church and a report submitted by G. H. Anderson, W. H. Rights and John W. Conner, members of a special financial committee, was read and adopted. At the close of the meeting the members of the choir who were holding their weekly practice were invited into the meeting and refreshments of strawberries, cream and cake were served. The board voted an expression of appreciation to the choir for its faithful service.

Mrs. Clifford Starr went to Sparksville this morning to spend the week-end the guest of her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. L. Starr.

Temperance Notes

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

BUSINESS AND HEALTH.

"Why is our country going dry so fast?" asks the Philadelphia Ledger, and answers: "Business and health! That combination beats moral suasion and the appeals of a 'Ten Nights in a Barroom.'"

"Life insurance companies for some years past have paid very close attention to liquor as an insurance hazard. They have compiled figures, using hundreds of thousands of persons as a basis for computations. These prove that a man who does not drink will on the average live much longer than the man who drinks even moderately. "Taking 2,000,000 policyholders as a test, insurance companies discovered that men who only occasionally 'got tight' suffered a death rate just one-half greater than strictly temperance men. Among men who drink only two glasses of beer or one glass of whisky in a day the mortality was almost a fifth greater. Other men who drink more than that but still not enough to bar them from insurance companies, showed an appalling mortality of almost double that among men who were never introduced to John Barleycorn."

DRINK AND MACHINERY.

Things have changed since the day when a man could drink and injure no one but himself and a few others, says the Kansas City Star in an editorial on "Booze and Machinery."

A drunken man might drive a horse through a street crowded with other horses and not damage himself or anyone else; but a drunken man in a motor car in a street crowded with other hurrying motor cars becomes a veritable death angel. A drunken man might drive a stage coach filled with passengers and all arrive safely. But a drunken man at the engine throttle, or asleep in the signal tower, is a different thing. A drunken blacksmith in the old days would simply spoil a few horseshoes, and maybe give his wife a black eye. But now a drunken factory hand can ruin thousands of dollars' worth of machinery and endanger lives of fellow workmen.

PROHIBITION STANDS TEST.

The year 1916 has witnessed a triumph perhaps even greater than the mere gaining of territory, a thorough and satisfactory testing of the prohibition policy. During the past 52 weeks the new prohibition states have so convincingly demonstrated the economic, social and moral benefits of the law that they are quite sufficient refutation of the false charges made by the liquor publicity bureaus that prohibition does not prohibit; that it is a failure; that it leads to economic disaster, and other statements of like tenor. As to the satisfaction of the residents of these states with the new regime, the magnificent vote in Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Arizona and Arkansas on November 7 against the measures initiated by the liquor interests to weaken or nullify the new laws, furnishes abundant testimony.

INSANITY AND DRY STATES.

The publicity bureau of the liquor interests is trying to make the public believe that prohibition Kansas has more insane in proportion to the population than have license states. He selects for selection three wet states which are more than 50 per cent dry, rather than three which are mostly wet, as New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. But that is a way the liquorites have.

The insane rate in Kansas is 172.2 per 100,000; in New York it is 342.2 per 100,000; in New Jersey, 238.1 per 100,000; in Pennsylvania, 229.1 per 100,000.

When it comes to the percentage of what is known as alcoholic insanity—the only fair basis for a test—the rate in Kansas is remarkably low. That state has only 17 per cent of alcoholic insane.

PROHIBITION IS PROHIBITING.

Three breweries in St. Louis have gone out of business within the last few months. The Mutual was closed November 14 by order of the referee in bankruptcy; the Excelsior closed its doors January 1, and about the same time the Forest Park Brewing company filed a petition in bankruptcy. All on account of the encroachments of prohibition!

AVERAGE TAX RATE.

In 1915 the average tax rate in the dry Illinois cities of Mattoon, Decatur, Champaign, Bloomington, Freeport, Elgin, Canton, Galesburg, Rockford, and Jacksonville was 6.01. The average rate in the wet cities of East St. Louis, Springfield, Joliet, Waukegan, Moline, Rock Island, Aurora, Peoria, Danville and Quincy was 6.84.

FIND NEW USES.

Breweries lend themselves readily with little change to the manufacture of ice and for cold storage purposes. Packing plants and creameries and ice cream factories frequently succeed breweries. A former brewery in Aberdeen, Wash., is now canning clams. One in Spokane is manufacturing vinegar. In Olympia the brewery plant is being used in the dairy products business, while in Bellingham the farmers got together and bought the brewery to use for a co-operative creamery. A former brewery in Seattle, the largest in the state, is remodeled for the manufacture of a fine grade of table sirup from cracked rice, and denatured alcohol will be produced as a by-product. The Coors' brewery of Golden, Colo., is successfully manufacturing malted milk in a portion of the plant, the remainder being used in the production from Colorado clay of a fine porcelain. It is impossible to give in detail the entire list of transformations, but the products being turned out in former breweries include in addition to the articles already mentioned, yeast, dry cells, soap, chemicals, moving picture films, paint, varnish and loganberry juice.

AT FEARFUL COST.

England has at last waked up to the ravages made on her finances by drink. A writer in the Christian of London informs us that since the war began the liquor trade has used up the labor of lifting 60,000,000 tons; that the great Pyramid of Egypt could have been pulled down and reset three times over by the labor used in landing the drink stuff at the London docks. This amounts to more than all the rest of the unloading together. With regard to food, it is said there would have been three and a half million more tons of food but for the traffic. From every home an amount equal to a pound has been stolen daily since the war began. The labor is considered equivalent to the whole of the United Kingdom having stood idle for a hundred days.

The war savings committee has been preaching economy to ladies in their dress, and discovers now that two and a half million dollars are squandered daily for a drink that damages health. —Louisa A'hmety Nash, in the Union Signal.

IN ARKANSAS.

The mayor of Little Rock thus testifies to the success of prohibition: "Merchants in ten lines of business in my city have consulted and testified that their collections are far better this year than last. The sales sheets of many retail dealers show a steady increase in the amount of business done, while the records of the chamber of commerce show a steady increase in the number of carload shipments of all kinds. The post office reports an increase in business of $360,543.63—which is considered phenomenal for a post office in a town the size of Little Rock. Bank deposits show an increase of $3,500,000; bank clearings, of over $11,000,000. Savings accounts far exceed in number those of any previous year. The referee in bankruptcy says there is no business in his line."

A CEREBRAL POISON.

Alcohol is specifically and to all intents and purposes a cerebral poison. It seizes with its disorganizing energy upon the brain, that mysterious part whose steady and undisturbed action holds man in true and responsible relations with his family, with society, and with God; and it is this fearful fact that gives to government and society their tremendous interest in the question.—Yonmans on Alcohol.

TRULY PITIFUL!

"Speaking of drink," he said, though nobody had been, "you hear it said that alcohol stimulates the wit and imagination. That's rot. Have you ever been on the water wagon at a dinner where every one else was drinking? They say things they wouldn't think worth saying, and laugh at things they wouldn't think of laughing at, if it weren't for the champagne. The drinking doesn't make them brighter. It merely lowers their standard of appreciation. When you're stone sober, it's pitiful."

Mysterious Men

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
 Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: So is everyone that is born of the Spirit.—John 3:8.

The text sets forth the mystery of the new birth. Psychology has given much attention to the new birth of late, and some think it has been taken out of the realm of the mysterious and brought into the realm of the natural. But while the science just mentioned has made valuable observations on the psychic states connected with conversion, the new birth remains as mysterious as ever. The Holy Spirit operates in the region of the subconsciousness and while we hear "the sound thereof," in the effects produced, his work is as mysterious as the wind.

Mystery of the Newborn.
 But while the text sets forth the mystery of the new birth, it suggests, also, the mystery of the newborn. We are told that like the wind blowing where it listeth, whose sound is heard but whose origin and course we cannot trace, "so is everyone that is born of the Spirit." Newborn men are unaccountable to men of the world. They belong to another kingdom which workings cannot even "see." Their motives, their talk, their behavior, greatly puzzle the unregenerate, between whom and them there is "a great gulf."

We are reminded here of a story concerning Sir Isaac Newton. It is said that when he was studying the laws of light, he had a tub of water placed in front of his house and would sit for hours blowing soap bubbles and making observations on reflection and refraction. His simple neighbors, who knew nothing of the great thoughts passing through his brain, could not understand his behavior, but would sigh and shake their heads sadly and say: "Poor man!"

Bunyan's Experience.
 John Bunyan has set forth the strangeness of the newborn in the eyes of men in his picture of Vanity Fair. When the pilgrims entered the fair there was a great hubbub about them and that for three reasons. First, "The pilgrims were clothed with such kind of raiment as was diverse from the raiment of any that traded at that fair. The people of the fair, therefore, made a great gazing upon them; some said they were fools, some they were bed-lams, and some they are outlandish men." (1 Cor. 2:7, 8.) Secondly, "But as they wondered at their apparel, so they did likewise at their speech; for few could understand what they said; they naturally spoke the language of Canaan, but they that kept the fair were the men of this world; so that, from one end of the fair to the other, they seemed barbarians each to the other." Thirdly, "But that which did not a little amuse the merchants was that these pilgrims set very light by all their wares."

Since newborn men are unaccountable to the men of Vanity Fair, it follows that during this present evil age "the offense of the cross" will not cease. Our friends will marvel at our talk of heavenly things. They cannot understand our enthusiasm over fields of service which seem dreary to them; why a young man should give up a career or a young woman give up social prospects to become a missionary is to them an insoluble mystery. "So is everyone that is born of the Spirit." But to none are the newborn so mysterious as to those who themselves are seeking to enter the kingdom of God. John Bunyan tells how he heard "four poor women sitting at a door in the sun" talking of the new birth they had experienced, and declares "they were to me as if they had found a new world."

The Struggle.
 A little later he writes: "The state and happiness of these poor people at Bedford was thus, in a kind of vision, presented to me. I saw as if they were on the sunny side of some high mountain, while I was shivering in the cold, afflicted with frost, snow and dark clouds. Methought also betwixt me and them I saw a wall that did compass about this mountain, and through this wall my soul did greatly desire to pass. About this wall I thought myself to go again and again, still playing as I went, to see if I could find some passage, but none could I find for some time. At the last I saw as it were a narrow gap, through which I attempted to pass, but the passage being very straight I made many offers, but all in vain. At last, with great striving, I at first did get in my head, and after that, by a side-long striving, my shoulders and my whole body. Then was I exceeding glad, and went and sat down in the midst of them, and so was comforted with the light and heat of their sun."

Reader, do you wish to become one of God's mysterious men? Your part is simple, viz, to receive Christ. Read and reread John, 1:12, 13.

CHAPTER XVI.

"I am Mrs. Ellsworth—yes," said the woman with the agreeable voice who answered Lydia's ring. "Won't you come in?"

And when Lydia had crossed the threshold Mrs. Ellsworth shut the vestibule door and looked the girl over with smiling interest.

"Miss Craven, I presume?"

"You're expecting me?"

"Your father telephoned sometime ago. Would you mind stepping upstairs?"

"But—I have merely a message—"

"Yes, my dear, I know; but do let me consider it in comfort—upstairs."

Under the soft glow of the electric dome Mrs. Ellsworth's smile and the gracious inclination of her head that invited Lydia anew to ascend the stairway were alike quite irresistible. Lydia found no excuse for refusing; so subdued her impatience, assented with a murmur, and preceded her hostess up the staircase.

"I'm really delighted to know you, Miss Craven. Yes—straight ahead, if you please. But I do need more light to see you by."

Entering the designated room, Mrs. Ellsworth touched a wall switch, adding the illumination of an electric lamp to the subdued glow of the reading lamp on a desk, and paused to review the girl with her kindly and engaging glance.

"I've known your father for many years," she affirmed, nodding; "and you've much of his charm, my dear, though you don't resemble him in the least—rather, I fancy, your mother."

"You knew my mother?" Lydia asked eagerly.

"No. Won't you sit down? No; Tad Craven has always been a confirmed bachelor in everybody's esteem since I've known him. Is it true he means to marry again?"

"Yes," said Lydia; and opening her wrist bag produced Craven's note.

"No—please don't rise," interrupted Mrs. Ellsworth, crossing to her. "Mr. Craven mentioned this over the wire. Pardon—"

Taking a chair beside the reading lamp, she opened and scanned the message with careless interest. A nod confirmed evident foreknowledge of its contents. Folding the note abstractedly, Mrs. Ellsworth seemed for some moments preoccupied.

But Peter Traft had claims not long to be disregarded, and presently Lydia stirred restlessly, with an inquiring look ready for the eyes that her hostess then lifted from the carpet.

"You've met this—ah—Mrs. Merrilees, no doubt?" Mrs. Ellsworth queried unexpectedly. "Is she then such a beauty as they say?"

"She's very beautiful," Lydia returned, "and I'm very fond of her. But, if you don't mind, Mrs. Ellsworth, I have another appointment; in fact, with Mrs. Merrilees and my father—"

"Oh, I beg your pardon, my dear," Mrs. Ellsworth assumed a convincing look of contrition. "So thoughtless of me. I quite forgot to tell you: Mr. Craven wants you to wait for him here, rather than keep the appointment at the Margrave."

"The Margrave again!"

"The Plaza," Lydia corrected absently; then in a breath remembered. "I'm sorry," she said, rising, "but I can't wait. If daddy's coming here, he'll get the answer from you personally; so there's no need," here Mrs. Ellsworth rose in her turn. "And—I left a friend waiting in the taxi."

"A friend?"

It was none of Mrs. Ellsworth's affair, but quite automatically Lydia answered, "Mr. Traft."

"But really hadn't you better wait? I'm sure Mr. Craven won't be long now."

Mrs. Ellsworth was moving slowly toward the door, as if she didn't really expect her objection to avail, an effect heightened by her manner, which continued to be perfect, lacking anything but gracious interest.

Lydia, however, was quite settled in her determination to wait no longer. Craven could lose nothing by being obliged to follow her to the Plaza; and anyway, in all fairness, she owed his wishes little consideration—he who was little enough considerate to her—and below in the taxi all earthly happiness waited.

"I'm sorry," she repeated mechanically. "You're very kind; but I really don't think—"

At this point she was interrupted by a shrill-tongued electric bell downstairs. Mrs. Ellsworth started nervously, eyed the girl furtively with what seemed a trace of doubt, and darted toward the door.

"The telephone!" she said indistinctly. "Forgive me if I—"

Her hand caught the knob as if thoughtlessly; but the slam of the door cut short her words emphatically enough to have awakened her to appreciation, had her act been really thoughtless.

For an instant Lydia paused in amazement. The thing was incredible, preposterous, outrageous!

None the less the door remained obdurately shut, mutely testifying that the incredible was an accomplished fact.

With a little cry of indignation the girl tried the knob. It turned freely, but without engaging the latch. Infuriated, she caught it with both hands, braced a knee against the wall, and pulled with all the strength of her lithe and vigorous young body; but failed to budge the door by so much as a hair's breadth. And the only discoverable keyhole was in the knob itself—a thin, irregular slit for a combination latch-key, lacking which the door, once closed, could never be opened, but only hewed or battered down.

Examination proved the room a veritable stronghold. It had only the one door. The sashes of the two windows were guarded with locks requiring a key; through the panes closed steel blinds with hasps and padlocks were to be seen. There was not a bell button on the walls; and the telephone on the desk yielded no response to the girl's manipulation of the receiver hook—evidently an extension cut off from the main line.

At length Lydia yielded to the inevitable, sat down, composed herself to the best of her ability, and strove to fit some reasonable explanation to this atrocious and high-handed act. There was but three:

She was the victim of a nightmare.

Mrs. Ellsworth was insane.

Or else Craven had never meant her to restore the necklace to Mrs. Merrilees!

Bending forward, an elbow digging into her knee, her chin clipped between knuckles and palm, her mouth mutinous, her eyes smoldering, a hot spot in each cheek, motionless, Lydia brooded.

A key grated almost inaudibly in the lock. Lydia started; but before she could move the door swung open far enough to admit Craven, and was at once slammed behind him.

A pace or two from the wall the man pulled up and stared at his daughter, his face dark with temper.

Slowly Lydia rose and confronted him, hard eyes challenging his relentlessly.

"What's this," he demanded abruptly in an ugly voice, "what's this I hear about your bringing Peter Traft here in a taxi?"

"What does this mean," the girl retorted, "that you send me here to be locked up, as though I were a thief to be held for the police?"

He ignored, if he was sensible to, the stressed pronoun. "I want an answer to my question," he said threateningly.

"I demand an answer to mine," she returned, unyielding.

With an impatient gesture Craven advanced as if meaning to seize her and enforce obedience. But halfway

SUBTRACT IT

Advertising Multiplies Customers, Instead of Multiplying Margin of Profit

There's been a lot of persiflage lately about the cost of advertising being added to the retail price of goods.

All of which comes from those who haven't made as much of a study of advertising as they have of oratory and other things.

What really happens is this:

The cost of advertising is not added to the retail price as it stands.

The cost of advertising is SUBTRACTED from the retail price as it would have been without the advertising.

Without advertising to bring customers to her counter a ten-dollar-a-week clerk may sell $100 worth of goods. With advertising to feed buyers to her she may sell $250 worth.

The efficiency of every item of the overhead expense is multiplied in exactly the same way, at a cost that is trifling in comparison to returns.

It costs a definite amount to keep a store running, whether it has ten customers or ten hundred, or ten thousand.

This cost must be figured into prices of goods sold.

If it has ten hundred customers, the cost of operation can be divided among ten hundred.

If it has only ten, the cost must be divided among ten.

If it divided the cost of doing business by ten, the charge would be mighty high per customer.

The nearer the store comes to getting ten hundred customers, or ten thousand, the smaller the share of overhead to be charged against each.

The way to measure advertising charges is not to figure what they cost each one of the ten hundred or ten thousand.

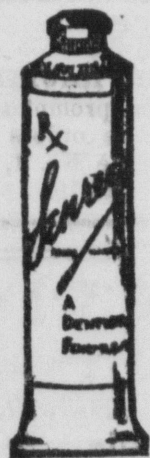

Measure them by what the selling costs would be for each of the ten customers—if there were only ten.

For advertising adds the ciphers to the original numeral. It changes the ten customers into ten thousand.

Every cent the merchant pays for it can be SUBTRACTED from what his prices would otherwise have to be.

The proof of this statement can be found in the books of every merchant who has built up a big business by big advertising.

Senreco
The double-service tooth paste, keeps teeth clean AND GUMS HEALTHY.

Appreciations from dentists who have personally proven Senreco. Names on request.

Birmingham, Alabama, Mar. 20, 1917.
I am using Senreco myself. Gums have improved wonderfully.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1917.
I find Senreco a great help in my work.

Chicago, Ill., Mar. 10, 1917.
I find by twelve months' personal use and from my observation of results obtained from the use of Senreco that soft, spongy gums which fail to respond to other treatments have at once shown marked improvement.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 22, 1917.
Senreco actually improves the condition of the gums by reducing inflammation. I highly recommend it.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 20, 1916.
I find Senreco very beneficial.

Chicago, Ill., April 7, 1917.
I am using your excellent tooth paste in my home and the other members of my family have given up their old-time favorites for Senreco.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18, 1916.
Am well pleased with Senreco—so are my patients.

New York City, Mar. 27, 1917.
Senreco is the best tooth paste in use this day.

Try this remarkable dentifrice yourself. Get a tube of Senreco at your druggist's or toilet counter today. Costs only 25c for large 2 oz. tube.

he paused, let his hand fall, with obvious effort relaxed; mustered a flickering and uncertain smile, meant to be ingratiating; moderated his tone. "Oh, come now!" he said in strained indulgence. "We can't go on forever quarreling, you and I, Liddy."

"I agree," she replied coolly. "Any explanation you can make—"

"It's all a mistake," Mrs. Ellsworth, a more zealous woman in—ah—our service, misinterpreted my message, believed it imperative you should be detained, and when you showed temper committed an unpardonable error. I'll see she apologizes; meantime I, your father, express my sincere regret."

Briefly Lydia analyzed words and tone, and found both hollow with insincerity. She shook her head wearily. "You're not telling me the truth. I've learned too well to know when you're inventing. If you mean what you say, if you wish to prove you didn't instruct that woman to lock me up, open that door and let me leave this house at once."

Craven sighed, shrugged tolerantly. "Very well," he urged. "I've no wish to detain you. Just one thing—and we'll go together. First be good enough to give me that puzzle box—"

"No!" Lydia cried out in a round full voice. "No!"

"What's that?" he said, incredulous. "I said no," Lydia told him. "I will not give you the puzzle box. It belongs to Mrs. Merrilees."

In a breath his face was suffused with blood. "So that's your style, is it?" he stormed, advancing. "Well, we'll have this out here and now, my lady! I'm your father—I order—I command you to hand over that box! Unless, of course, you prefer me to take it by force."

He had come within two feet, was menacing her with face and gestures of uncontrollable wrath. But she didn't yield a step.

"You can't," she said evenly.

"What the devil's to prevent?"

"Because Mrs. Merrilees has it now."

The man fell back as though she had raised a shape of horror between them; stammering and aghast he jabbered repetition, "Mrs. Merrilees has it—now!"

Lydia affirmed with a nod.

"You—you're not fooling me, Liddy?" asked Craven in a stricken voice.

"I'm telling you the truth, if you've the wit to recognize it," she said with the brutal intolerance of youth for age allied with depravity. "Sheer chance fooled you. My cab broke down at Fifty-fifth street. I walked two blocks north to get another at the Margrave—where Mrs. Merrilees wasn't stopping, and where you didn't mean to meet me after I'd called here—and by downright good luck found her with Mrs.

Beggarstaff. So I gave her the necklace, and came on here—Mr. Traft escorting me, though not at my request."

"Good heavens!" said Craven again, his accents quivering. "Do you know what you're saying, Liddy?"

"I'm afraid—I know too well."

With an inarticulate groan Craven sank into a chair and buried his face in his hands. "You've ruined me!"

"I've saved you, you mean."

"You don't understand. What—?" He looked up eagerly. "What did they say when you—when you gave back the necklace?"

"They were kind enough to say nothing, to pretend Mrs. Merrilees had instigated the smuggling swindle that you invented—to blind me. Even Mrs. Merrilees pretended, in the goodness of her heart. And I was deceived until—this Mrs. Ellsworth locked me in, and so gave me a chance to think from a true point of departure. Then I understood. I thought it all out—realized that you had stolen the necklace—that you were an associate of criminals—that I was the daughter of a common thief!"

Groaning, Craven covered his face again.

"Now," said the girl, "let me go. I don't know what action they mean to take against you, but, as for me, I ask nothing better than to be permitted to go and forget you."

"You mean you won't appear against me?" he asked.

"Not if I can manage to lose myself—another name, perhaps—"

"It won't be necessary," Craven interrupted in a voice of chill despair. He rose, stood staring at her with eyes deep sunken in sockets that had been suddenly hollowed out by despair. "I'm done for!"

A certain simplicity in that declaration convinced and struck fear into a heart that had been impregnable to all other appeals.

"What do you mean? Father, what do you mean?"

"You remember the knave of diamonds—the knave of clubs? There's one more knave in the series—spades—and that spells—death!"

"Father!"

"It's an old story—too long to detail. The knaves are warnings. I haven't had spades yet; but I'll get it within six hours unless I produce the necklace to be sold and shared. And that's now removed forever beyond my reach!"

"Father!" the girl reiterated witlessly. She caught the arm of a chair to steady herself, unconsciously sank into it, and sat staring and terrified.

"The trouble," said Craven in a broken voice, "the trouble is, I've always wanted to run straight—always. I guess every crook does, down deep. And when I saw a chance to marry money I shook Smith and Gordon. Only they wouldn't be shaken. And then I ran short, and to keep up appearances until after the marriage made up my mind to turn one last trick—the necklace—and then," he laughed bitterly, "virtue! But they were on the same job. And then you turned up. Otherwise I could have come through with the loot and saved myself. Now—"

He paused an instant, profoundly speculative. "I may have a chance yet for a getaway. They don't know where I am; though they may suspect. If only I can get an hour's lead out of town—"

The sound of sobbing disturbed him. What lies had conured up—fear, disgust, contempt—the truth had been excoriated; the rags and tatters of her childhood's love for him alone remained. Spent, broken in heart and spirit, humbled and torn with the horror his confession inspired, Lydia sat huddled in misery, racked with tearing sobs.

Craven moved to her side, touched her hair with hesitant fingers. "Well, well!" he said huskily. "We were fond of each other, weren't we, while it lasted, little girl? And your mother—I loved her. Well—well—"

He turned and without her knowledge gained the door; paused for a single, prolonged backward glance; shook his head uncertainly; shrugged; deftly inserted a key in the slit in the doorknob; and let himself softly out.

Only the muffled jar of the closing door made her understand that she was alone.

Corridor as Revolver Range.

A long basement corridor, bounded on either side by brick walls, has been fitted up at small expense by the police department of Salem, Mass., as a revolver range. The total cost of making the alteration was but $35. Because of its convenient location, the members of the force have found it easy to keep up their revolver practice. The target end of the corridor was covered with sheet iron, over which planks were placed to prevent the bullets from rebounding. The lights were protected with sheet iron also. A plain wooden counter serves to hold the revolvers when they are not in use. When a marksman desires to inspect the target closely it can be drawn nearer on a wire which is stretched from one end of the gallery to the other.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Ceilings.

Ceilings of an ordinary country or town house should be treated with great discretion. This work should never be trusted to a painter who will insist on some stenciled design for which he has a partiality. When a low ceiling is so treated it appears to be lower than it really is. We should not give attention to the ordinary ceiling. When the walls and woodwork are of one color the ceiling may be colored just enough to carry the tone away from white. Green walls and white woodwork require a white ceiling. Height is diminished by bringing the ceiling color down to the picture molding. The ceiling can then be finished with a wash or covered with paper. Flowered paper is sometimes used in such cases.—Exchange.

Traffic from this city north over the Jonesville road is blocked because of the washout at the fill just west of the wagon bridge at Rockford. The new concrete bridge was undamaged by the high water, but the gravel and rock fill was badly washed. It will be several days before travel can be resumed over the road. Frank Hess, county highway superintendent, believes that an iron bridge will have to be constructed there and it is expected that the county commissioners will soon make an inspection of the fill to decide upon the best plan to avoid washouts in the future. Local merchants desire that the washout be repaired as soon as possible for farmers living on the road are required to drive through Cortland to reach this city.

RUSSIAN REGIMENT ARRESTS OFFICERS

Minister of War Orders That Men Responsible be Held—Will be Court Martialed.

DETAILS OF AUSTRIAN SCHEME

Delegates Bearing Proposal for Separate Negotiations Are Sent to Their Own Lines.

(By William Philip Simms, United States Staff Correspondent)

Petrograd, June 9—Four regiments of the Seventh Russian army refused to obey the orders of their officers today. One additional regiment was reported to have arrested its own officers. Minister of War Kerensky ordered the arrest of all persons responsible for the incident. They will be court martialed.

Full details of the manner in which Austrian General Rohr made his peace proposals were made public by the war office today.

He selected two peace delegates from each of the sixty divisions on the Russian front—120 men in all. An Austrian prince was included in the peace delegates.

These men, bearing white flags, advanced to the Russian line. There the Austrian spokesman outlined the plan for the cessation of hostilities without waiting for government action.

The commander of the Russian troops forbade all his men discussing the matter and sent the men with the exception of the prince and one other back to the Austrian line. Papers found on the delegates revealed a plan whereby each Austrian general was urged to effect a peace agreement with the opposing Russian regiments.

Hudson River.

The entire length of the Hudson river is 309 miles. From Troy to the mouth of the river in New York bay, a distance of 150 miles, the river is tidal, owing to the low grade of its bed, by which the ocean tide is able to back up. It is this lower tidal navigable portion of the Hudson that is of so much importance, and of course the water is salt. It is regarded really an estuary of the sea. Above Albany and Troy the river is a small stream, and to its source the water is fresh.
